POLICE AIDING MR. WHYTE.

Chief Kiely yesterday issued orders to the Police Captains to instruct the patrolmen to make a thorough canvass of all vehicles and report the name of owner, residence and number of license plate. The object of this inspection is to assist in the investigation started by License Commissioner Whyte into what he considers improper issuance of licenses.

The reports will be returned by the patrolmen to the Captains, who will forward them to Chief Kiely. Each name and number will be compared with entries in the Licence Commissioner's books. Mr. Whyte expects the plan to sid greatly in the investigation, as the police will be able to do more than the few inspectors in Commissioner Whyte's service.

The closing week of the Grand Operahouse season is proving a profitable one, despite the weather, which seems to be tempting to anything else than enjoyment indoors. Murray and Mack, with the assistance of pretty girls and nimble men, have been doing all sorts of funny stunts in their "Shooting the Chutes." Murray and Mack are not notably original; for instance, they have the "chutes" at Coney Island, where scores of other stage people locate their scenes, quite as though there were no other place in the United States which has a beach and a "shoot-the-chutes" outfit. But Murray and Mack are funny, and they make people laugh and forget their troubles.

Washington, D. C., states that the initial step in the Horton-Butler contest, in Washington, was taken yesterday, and that Clerk McDowell of the House of Representatives made a ruling, which, Mr. Butler's attorneys think, will have a decided bearing on the result.

The ruling excludes from the record much evidence on which the contestant's counsel had centered their hope for a favorable decision. Clerk McDowell excludes the evidence on the ground that the contestant's counsel had violated the law in the preparation of the transcript of evidence and of exhibits for shipment.

be present at the opening of the boxes, said to contain the testimony taken by contestant in the case of Horton vs. Butler and to participate in the selection of that portion to be printed in the permanent record and that portion to be excluded by reason of its irrelevance or that was taken in violation of the statutes governing con-tested election cases.

After waiting until nearly II o'clock and Horton's attorney failing to appear, Clerk McDowell ordered the boxes opened.

"The law explicitly prescribes that all officers taking testimony to be used in a contested election case, whether by deposition or otherwise, shall, when the taking of the same is completed, and without unnecessary delay, certify and carefully seal and immediately forward the same, by mall or by express, addressed to the clerk of the House of Representatives of the United States. C., and shall also indorse upon the savelope containing such deposition or testimony the name of the case in which it is taken, together with the name of the party in whose behalf it is taken, and shall subscribe such indorsement.

"When the first box was opened it was found that the provision of law relative to the proper transmission of evidence had been ruthlessly violated, for the testimony alleged to have been taken before the different notaries was all contained in the one box, each tundle inclosed in light wrapping paper and tied with common twine, and not a single package scaled as required by law. Notwithstanding this plain violation of the statute and the further fact that matter might have been substituted for the testimony originally gives, after a cursory examination of the different bundles it was agreed that such testimony as purported to have been taken for Horton during the forty days allowed him by law for direct examination should be printed and constitute the permanent record, but that all that taken by Horton's attorneys after the expiration of the forty days allowed him. But the taken by Horton's attorneys after the expiration of the forty days allowed him it was testimony in chief and not in rebuttal, and being taken is most violation of every known parameter of the new of every known parameter of the status of every known parameter of the surface of the surface that Clerk McDowell at once said was of such nature as to preclude any possibility of its being incorporated in the permanent record of the case, little if any of it being under official seal. He also ruled that the various so-called exhibits were not entitled to be printed.

"Messrs. Rowe and Rogers this evening expressed themselves as being perfectly satisfied with the action of Clerk McDowell and his evident desire to be fair and impartial in his rulings upon contested points.

"As the matter now stands, said Mr. Rowe, 'the printed record in the case will be anything but prejudicial to Mr. Butler's interests, and will show facts brought out in the examination of Horton's own selected in the examination of Horton's own selected witnesses that cannot but be beneficial to Mr. Butler."

ATTORNEY FISSE STILL HAS HOPE.

Attorney William E. Fisse, chief counsel for Mr. Horton, said last night that he would not define the course he would follow in the future. He remarked that when the evidence was submitted to the House committee it would be time to act. He maintained that the evidence was forwarded to Washington in the proper manner, notwithstanding the ruling of Clerk McDowell to the contrary. He admitted McDowell to the contrary. He admitted that he hoped to get into the official record a part of the evidence which had been stricken out and asserted that another ef-fort would be made when the case is taken up by the House committee.
